Home!

The Daily Nebraskan is turning 125!

The DN is the largest newsroom in the state, and is mission-driven, trustworthy, and has a long history of covering the news.

That's 125 years of student-led journalism; covering timely, objective and relevant stories that are important to campus and the Lincoln community.

But it's more than a newsroom.

It's where students gain hands-on experience, build confidence, and learn skills that set them apart after graduation.

> "It has been a really rewarding experience. The Daily Nebraskan has given me so much confidence in myself." – Josie Golka, editor-in-chief of the Daily Nebraskan

But above all of this, the Daily Nebraskan, for many students in the newsroom, is home. It's where they spend time with their friends, create life-long friendships and foster mentorship relationships. It's where they go when they're working and when they're not. Students want to be there, with their friends, in their space, covering what's important to them and their campus.

The Daily Nebraskan provides a safe environment for students to find their voices, encourage one another and build hands on skills.

As we count down to our 125th birthday, we're inviting past staffers, loyal readers, and supporters like you to make a gift to the Daily Nebraskan Editorial Support Fund. This fund is designed to pay for student salaries in perpetuity, ensuring that passionate, talented students can continue producing high-quality journalism the DN is known for.

MAKE A GIFT TO THE DN TODAY!

Every single gift, no matter the size, directly supports our staff. Thank you for being here with us through it all.

Sincerely,

Allen Vaughan
General Manager, The Daily Nebraskan
