Dear Megan,

This year marks my 10th at Rollins, and one of the greatest privileges of my role has been witnessing how financial aid can change lives. Time and again, I've seen talented students join our close-knit community for orientation because generous donors chose to invest in their potential.

The landscape of higher education is changing. Nationwide, demographic shifts mean fewer students are graduating from high school each year, a phenomenon that will continue for the next two decades. And because median household incomes are not keeping pace with the rising costs of higher education, families face growing financial need. At Rollins, we invest an average of $13,400 more per student each year than we receive in tuition, room, and board, creating a $39.6 million annual gap across the institution. We rely on philanthropy to help us not only bridge that gap but also provide the kind of high-impact programming that makes Rollins a competitive and academically rigorous institution.

Financial aid allows us to enroll the best and brightest here at Rollins and gives us a leg up on an increasingly competitive higher education environment. Students like Presidential Scholar and Bonner Leader Nazliyan Duman '26 are here because of our commitment to access and opportunity. Your support makes her journey—and the journeys of so many others—possible.

I invite you to join me in making a gift of $50 or more to Financial Aid today.

Financial aid does more than open the door to a Rollins education. It ensures that once here, students have the resources to pursue the very experiences that define Rollins: studying abroad, conducting original research, interning with global organizations, and stepping into leadership roles that shape their futures. It also positions Rollins as a preeminent institution that is dedicated to attracting the brightest minds, regardless of background.

Together, we create access. Together, we ensure academic excellence. And together, we make the Rollins experience brighter for every student.

With gratitude,

Faye Tydlaska

The Power of Access: When Support Meets Determination

"As a first-generation college student from a low-income military family, I began engaging with my community through nonprofits and volunteer work in middle school. That commitment to service led to not only my admission to Rollins, but also to the financial aid and scholarships that made it possible for me to attend. Today, I'm majoring in Social Entrepreneurship and taking advantage of every opportunity that comes my way, like my volunteer work with 4Roots and my internship with AdventHealth, where I designed a new human-centered evaluation system to sponsor and invest in 300 nonprofit sponsorship requests annually. Thanks to the support I've received, I'm now preparing for a future career in corporate social responsibility so I can continue finding meaningful ways to give back to the community through philanthropy and community engagement."

You can open doors of opportunity.

Rollins students are leaders, researchers, and innovators who are ready to make a difference in the world. When you give to Financial Aid, you do more than provide scholarships—you create access to internships, research opportunities, and mentorship that prepare students for lives and careers of purpose. Whether they are addressing community needs, advancing healthcare, or shaping policy, they are carving a path to a brighter future for us all. Together, we can ensure every student has the opportunity to succeed.
